GATEWAY OPEN STUDIO TOUR 15 VENUES. 70 STUDIOS. 120 ARTISTS.

On behalf of the board and staff of the Gateway Community Development Corporation (Gateway CDC), welcome to the 7th Annual Gateway Arts District Open Studio Tour! The Gateway Arts District is recognized as a center for world-class artists working in all mediums, and this year's event promises to be another great opportunity to visit their studios and see the work of this intensely creative community.

Free shuttle bus transportation is available along the Route 1/Rhode Island Avenue corridor to help get you to all the venues on the tour. Look for the bus logo on the map to see all the stops.

In Mount Rainier, you can visit the studio of Alan Binstock and the Artists on the Tracks complex which includes the Washington Glass, Red Dirt and Flux studios to name a few. There is even a shuttle stop at Joe's Movement Emporium for easy access to restaurants and shops. And several other studios are located just a short walk from the Tracks so check the map and make sure to see them all.

Just up Route 1 is the Gateway Arts Center at Brentwood (GAC@B). This community visual arts center is home to 12 artist studios, the 39th Street Gallery, the Brentwood Arts Exchange and the Prince George's African American Museum and Cultural Center's Gallery 110. Check out the events happening at the GAC@B throughout the day and into the night! Two blocks north is the ezStorage building where you can visit several studios and a pop-up gallery featuring artists of the Hyattsville Community Arts Alliance (HCAA).

Up the road into Hyattsville, you can see more work of the HCAA displayed at Franklin's Restaurant, Brewery and General Store as well as artDC's gallery located in the EYA development. From there, a short drive into the town of Edmonston will take you to DC Glassworks.

There is a lot for you to experience in the Gateway Arts District, so have fun exploring this creative community.

Sincerely,
Michael Gumpert
Executive Director,
Gateway CDC
